> More about PUNGINELLI SRL

Punginelli srl specializes in the repair and production of on-board electronic control units on passenger and/or goods transport vehicles. Since 2004, continuous research and development has led the Punginelli company to become one of the most representative companies in the sector, both nationally and internationally.

Our structure has always followed guidelines, both in the use of the highest technological level "test in circuit, reverse engineering, design and development of test simulators" to test the individual units, and in the investment in professional human resources to face the continuous industry evolutions.
