> More about ALBERTO NADA Architetto

Architect and Designer, he has been a member of the Professional Order of Architects of Turin since 1995. In 1994, he founded the architectural firm “studiodna progetti” and was the scientific consultant for the “Living Design” area of ICAF - Italy China Architectural Forum. For over twenty years he has been dealing with architecture, design and consulting for private clients, companies and public bodies, with particular attention to the issues of sustainability and research applied to new materials. Together with a multidisciplinary working team, he coordinates the entire design process.

In recent years he has specialized in systems, technologies and solutions for the design and construction of “off-site” buildings in wood, with high-energy performance. Sensitive to the issues of “Zero soil consumption”, reuse and densification, he concentrates his professional and research activity on urban regeneration projects, using a sustainable approach based on ethical design being and comfort.

In 2021 co-founded Greenarch srl, an Italian design company born from the many years of experience of its founders in the real estate and sustainable design fields. Researches and offers highly innovative real estate investments strategy focused on human well-being. It uses green innovation criteria with an approach that puts people and their living well-being at the centre.
