> More about SERIENUMERICA

At serien°umerica we share the belief that a collective commitment to ensure a more sustainable and fairer world is needed: each and every person can contribute with their choices and means to the creation of a wave of positive change for our planet and its people.

We have always thrived on a deep connection with the quality of the raw material used in our creations, and an attentive research on our partners' values and practices has profoundly shaped our approach to fashion – from ideation to production. All our garments are fully made in Italy, and the ones under this special label stand for a superior level of attention to aspects related to environmental and social sustainability.

You will discover an array of products with details of superior care: crafted through prime manual techniques, treated with natural dyes, or produced in collaboration with small local partners who guarantee worker's rights across the supply chain.
