

HAL SERVICE

> More about HAL SERVICE

Hal Service was founded in 1990 as third-party maintenance in IBM.

The synergy between System Integration and telecommunication skills offers Hal Service to successfully offer value-added solutions or service continuity solutions, both in terms of design quality and reliability of implementation and management.

The growth of interest of the corporate market to high quality connectivity services has Hal Service to widen its offer to the whole national territory (using its own network and networks in wholesale mode of other suppliers).

Company re-engineering, construction of the new reseller channel, adaptation of information supports and research and development-oriented to the Internet of Things (IoT) and Artificial Intelligence (AI) are the initiatives in progress.
