> More about SATURNO CASA

The Saturno Group, established in 1957 in Turin, was among the pioneers in developing high-frequency electronic welding technology for vinyl (PVC) in Italy. Subsequently, it ventured into the automotive market, manufacturing interior fittings such as dashboards, door panels, sunshields, gear and brake lever coverings, and various other components.

The company's growth, driven by research, technological improvement, and innovation across various sectors, led to the acquisition of the company LGB. Through this acquisition, the enterprise expanded its processing sectors to include continuous and positioned quilting for the production of wall coverings, fashion curtains, beach loungers, deck chairs, and director's chairs.

Currently, the company operates in the following application sectors: ecology, indoor and outdoor furniture, beach resorts, nautical, automotive, cosmetics and optics, home and bathroom accessories, camping, office, wheelchair fittings for people with disabilities, promotional items, and packaging.
